

Re-Authoring the World Workshops in South Africa

Re-authoring Diversity and Inclusion Workshop
| 15-16 November 2018 | Pretoria, South Africa

Discover and learn how our stories of the “other” shape and maintain who we include and exclude in our relationships, communities and organisations.

What is it about? In our two days together, we will explore how our capacity as story-makers and meaning-makers influence our way of being with the “other”. We will also discover how the gifts of dignity, human connectedness and hospitality can open up possibilities in our relationships to “unother” the “other”.

We will focus on the following themes and questions:

- The role of culture and language in constructing the “other”
- Understanding privilege and power in inclusion
- Practices that includes and welcome the stranger/ “other”

Where? Pretoria @ 233 Kandelaar Avenue, La Montagne.

Who should attend? Leaders, managers, HR and OD practitioners, coaching professionals, educators, social workers, facilitators of group-work, activists and healthcare professionals.

The cost: R2000 per workshop that includes a copy of the Re-authoring the World book, a light lunch, tea/coffee and snacks

The Facilitators: Chené Swart and Lungi Molamu, have been co-facilitating diversity and inclusion workshops together for nearly 10 years. Their work is built upon a deep friendship and love for narrative re-authoring ideas that continually open new ideas and practices in this work.

How will we learn? In this workshop we learn through conversation and the movement between content and life experiences. The learning experience seeks to ignite the beauty and dignity of all who participates.

And there is more: This workshop is one in a series of six workshops that can be attended as a whole or separately. These workshops address the most important themes of re-authoring ideas and practices over a 7-month period. The workshops are designed to be stand-alone experiences of learning so that participants can enter the journey at any point without feeling excluded. If you are interested in integrating the re-authoring ideas and practices into your life and work, you can also take part in an apprentice journey that will run simultaneously to the workshop mentioned above.

Contact her for more information: chene@transformations.co.za or swart.chene@gmail.com

Read more here: <http://www.transformations.co.za/re-authoring%20the-world-workshops.html>

Illustrated by: Mariah Howard