

Re-Authoring the World Workshops in South Africa

Re-authoring questions, listening and documentation Workshop

Pretoria, South Africa

Discover and learn how our ways of listening, questioning and documenting can transport individuals and organisations to other worlds as it ignites the beauty and the dignity of all who participates.

What is it about? In our two days together, we will explore and practice ways of seeing and doing that builds a podium for human dignity and respect and that open up magical doors of possibility. We will focus on being with individuals and communities in transformational ways through practices of:

- Listening
- Asking questions
- Documenting
- Celebrating

Where? Pretoria @ 233 Kandelaar Avenue, La Montagne.

Who should attend? Leaders, managers, HR and OD practitioners, coaching professionals, educators, social workers, facilitators of group-work, activists and healthcare professionals.

The cost: R2000 per workshop that includes a copy of the Re-authoring the World book, a light lunch, tea/coffee and snacks

How will we learn? In this workshop we learn through conversation and the movement between content and life experiences. The learning experience seeks to ignite the beauty and dignity of all who participates.

And there is more: This workshop is one in a series of six workshops that can be attended as a whole or separately. These workshops address the most important themes of re-authoring ideas and practices over a 7-month period. The workshops are designed to be stand-alone experiences of learning so that participants can enter the journey at any point without feeling excluded. If you are interested in integrating the re-authoring ideas and practices into your life and work, you can also take part in an apprentice journey that will run simultaneously to the workshop mentioned above.

Contact her for more information: chene@transformations.co.za or swart.chene@gmail.com

Read more here: <http://www.transformations.co.za/re-authoring%20the-world-workshops.html>